

40 Tons Pineapple Safeway Purchase

Forty tons of Hawaiian canned pineapple, the largest individual order ever received in Southern California, arrived in Los Angeles harbor recently from Honolulu on board the steamship City of Los Angeles.

San Diego, operates the largest chain grocery organization in the west. This huge pineapple order, according to Edward Dale, vice-president and general manager of the Safeway organization, weighed exactly 89,160 pounds, and 1629 cases were required to transport the luscious tropical fruit from packers to distributors.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCartney and family, of Cypress street, spent the Fourth at Santa Monica.

REO

Your car—what is back of it?

You are justified in expecting outstanding superiority in Reo automobiles. You will not be disappointed.

Back of Reo motor cars are definite reasons why they are chosen in preference to others.

The materials that go into Reo construction are the highest quality that money can buy. The workmanship is the finest.

Back of Reo products are tremendous resources and a factory with manufacturing facilities that are not surpassed.

Back of the Reo factory is the accumulated experience of twenty-one years of fine motor car manufacture.

Consider what is back of the car you buy.

Palmer & Fix

Cabrillo nad Border Avenues

Torrance

Telephone 131

REO MOTOR CAR COMPANY Lansing, Michigan

OVEN CANNING

Successful canning need not be a matter of chance or luck.

The Lorain Oven Heat Regulator on the new Clark-Jewel range is the key to successful, practically automatic canning of fruits and vegetables.

You are welcome to visit our display rooms at any time.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GAS COMPANY

Cravens and Post Aves.

Torrance

Motor Coach Company TIME TABLE

Table with columns for Leave Torrance and Leave Long Beach, listing times from 7:00 A.M. to 8:11:25.

D—Daily except Sundays and Holidays. S—Sunday only. *Connects for Catalina Island.

The One who Forgot

By RUBY M. AYRES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

PETER LYSTER has lost his memory from shell shock on the Western Front. Upon his return to London he fails to recognize...

JOAN MARRABY, to whom he became engaged prior to going to France. Nan has since left London to return home and care for her three motherless stepbrothers. Nan is in touch with...

JOHN ARNOTT, with whom Peter is spending a leave for rest at the home of Arnott's sister located near the Marray estate. Joan is jealous of Arnott's sister and disgusted with the attentions of...

HARLEY SEFTON, money lender, whom she first met through Peter prior to his departure for France. Sefton, whom Peter also failed to recognize on his return, has told Nan that both Peter and her father owe him large sums of money and that it is entirely up to her whether he presses collection.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

VERY well," Nan said with sudden flippancy. "Any day you like—I shall be delighted."

She purposely avoided shaking hands with Peter before the car started. The last glimpse she had of her as they drove away was her slim figure at the gate, with three boys clamoring round her.

The day after Arnott and his sister called at Leavenden, Nan met Harley Sefton in the wood. He wore riding breeches and gaiters which he affected when he was down in the country, and he carried his usual crop.

He liked to play the part of country squire when he was at Little Gadsden.

Nan rose to her feet when she saw him, dropping the little sweet-scented flowers all around her, her face paling.

He smiled delightedly as he raised his hat.

"This is better luck than I hoped for—I was coming to call on you this afternoon."

"Indeed!" said Nan.

Her voice was unfriendly; she kept her hands behind her back. "I shan't shake hands with him, even if he offers to shake hands with me," she was telling herself determinedly.

But Sefton did not offer; he stood flicking his boots with the hunting crop.

"Did you pick those flowers to throw them away?" he asked after a moment.

Nan glanced down to the scattered primroses at her feet.

"Yes," she said defiantly. "I did. A half smile crossed his face. 'That's rather unkind, isn't it?' he asked.

Nan flushed; she watched silently while he stooped and gathered them together.

"Why were you coming to see me?" she asked suddenly.

He did not answer till he had picked up all the flowers, then he held them to her in a neat little bunch, but she drew back.

"No, thank you."

He did not look in the least offended.

"That means that you will give them to me—a thousand thanks."

He began to put them in his button-hole.

Nan looked at him with flashing eyes—suddenly she tore the flowers from him.

"I wonder you dare treat me like this," she said. "I wonder you dare even speak to me after what happened the other afternoon."

Her eyes were furious.

He regarded her serenely.

"And what did happen?" he asked smoothly. "Just a little plain speaking between two worldly-wise people who are both sufficiently worldly-wise to understand. Come, Miss Marray, I want to be friends with you."

"And I," said Nan, "would rather die than have you for a friend. I don't trust you, and I don't like you."

The faintest little flicker of anger crossed his face.

"That's almost a pity—seeing that I mean to marry you," he said calmly.

my time," he said, with a touch of real emotion in his voice, "but I've never met one I admired as I do you. Marry me, Nan... Marry me, and I'll let your father off every penny of the money he owes me."

"I don't believe that he owes you anything—I wouldn't believe it if you swore it," she told him. She was breathless and trembling.

"Would you believe it if he told you?" he asked.

"No," said Nan, violently. "And even if I did," she added, "after a moment, 'do you think I would sell myself to you, to pay an extortionate debt, to which I

First of all—will you marry me?"

don't suppose you're really entitled."

He bent suddenly, peering down into her flushed face, and was kissing her white face.

"But—supposing it was to save someone else?" he asked.

Nan's eyes dilated as they met the subtle meaning of his.

"What do you mean?" she whispered.

"You know what I mean—you need not look so innocent," he answered, brutally. "You haven't lost your memory as Lyster has—or as he pretends to have done; you know quite well what I told you the other afternoon. Well, I'll be magnanimous—I'll throw Lyster's debt in with the rest—marry me, and I'll wipe them both off, but if you don't—"

"If I don't?" said Nan.

He let her go; he even drew back a step.

"If you don't," he said, "I'll go straight to Lyster and tell him the truth."

"Tell Mr. Lyster?" she stammered. "Why—why, you must be mad! What do you mean? What are you going to tell Mr. Lyster?"

"I mean what I say. I shall tell Lyster that he owes me money—and make him pay."

Nan almost laughed; she had been thinking something quite different from this.

"Such a threat doesn't frighten me," she said; her courage was coming back. "It's nothing to me whether Mr. Lyster owes you money or not; but I know him well enough to know that if he does he will pay you back—and every penny of it."

Sefton laughed disagreeably.

"You think so? Well, I hope you are right."

Nan raised her head proudly.

"And now, if you have quite finished, kindly let me pass."

"But I have not finished—there is a great deal more I have to say. Nan, I'm a rich man—I can give you everything you want; I can look after those brothers of yours and give them a start in life. I can put your father on his feet, and make you somebody in the world."

Nan listened apathetically. When he stopped speaking she looked him squarely in the eyes.

"I don't care to be somebody in the world," she said. "And I have had all the happiness I ever want—thank you."

"You mean—Lyster! Very well, then it will no doubt be a great kindness on my part to go and tell him what he—pretends to have forgotten—the pause was deliberate—"

"That you were once engaged to him—that he once imagined he loved you devotedly, and that the engagement was never broken until he came back to England and you were forgotten. You see, I have guessed rather more than you told me that day when we came down from town together."

"You can tell him what you like—it is of no interest to me."

Ask Motorists Adjust Lights For Mountains

Will Marsh Gives Good Advice to Summer Tourists

SACRAMENTO, July 6.—See that your lights are adjusted when you start on your trip into the mountains and that your camping equipment is properly loaded.

This advice is offered to motorists about to make their annual vacation trip in a bulletin issued today by Will H. Marsh, chief of the division of motor vehicles.

The law requires that your headlights furnish sufficient illumination for your safety but that they do not project a glaring or dazzling light," Marsh's bulletin says.

"Be on the safe side and have them adjusted before leaving."

Concerning the loading of camping equipment, the bulletin advises that the law prohibits any load extending beyond the hub caps on the front or more than six inches beyond the hub caps on the rear.

"Many motorists fail to load their equipment properly and serious accidents result on grade curves," it adds.

Motorists are also asked to cooperate in the prevention of forest fires by avoiding the use of the muffler cut-out and using care with cigarettes, matches, and gasoline.

With a sudden quick movement he caught her in his arms—before she could stop him he had bent her head back against his shoulder, and was kissing her white face.

Nan fought him with the frenzy of despair; but she was a child in his grasp, and her strength would have availed her nothing had not a crackle in the undergrowth broken the silence, and the next moment Peter Lyster was facing them in the narrow footpath.

Harley Sefton let Nan go—he was flushed, but he met Peter's eyes composedly enough.

For a moment nobody spoke. Nan was trembling in every limb.

(To Be Continued)

Jersey Milk

Perfectly Pasteurized

Phone Gardena 23 or Thornwall 4292 and we will start deliveries the following morning.

Angelus Dairy

"Where Cleanliness Abounds"

Normandie Ave. Near 190th Street Wm. P. Schuck, Prop.

SAVE with SAFETY at your Rexall DRUG STORE

On Trains and Vacations letters must often be written without the convenience of a desk frequently in a hurry

Lord Baltimore Writing Portfolios are made for just such emergencies. The writing case cover, placed on lap, knee or chair arm supplies the desk and the paper is fabric-finished stock of high quality.

Complete outfit with 50 sheets and 24 envelopes 50c

Orphanum BRANCH OFFICE

DOLLEY DRUG CO.

The Rexall Drug Store

Phone 10 Torrance

LOCAL NOTES

Mrs. Knox and family have returned to their home on Orange street, after a six-weeks visit in Kansas. Mrs. Knox's sister, Miss Carlisle, returned to Lomita with her, and will remain for a lengthy visit.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Thompson of Redondo boulevard and Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Olson of Moneta enjoyed a trip to Lake Arrowhead recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vaughn and family have moved from Sun street to Huntington Beach.

Russell Northrop, with his uncle, James Williams, is enjoying a motor trip to Washington.

Mrs. Emma Ross of Sun street and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ross of Torrance spent Sunday at Venice.

FRATERNAL Torrance Review No. 87 Woman's Benefit Association Hughes Roberts, Commander Meets Second and Fourth Tuesdays 7:30 P.M. Women's Clubhouse, Engracia Ave.

SAFeway STORES at Safeway—and Chaffee Stores Just around the corner is your Safeway... in charge of experienced grocers who enjoy serving you... intelligently and interestedly!

Highway Red Salmon 3 tall cans 1.00 Canning time—fruits plentiful and cheap—Sugar low priced.

Mason Jars half pints doz. 75c pints doz. 78c quarts doz. 93c half gallons doz. 1.25

Parowax 1.13 Certo takes the uncertainty out of jelly or jam making. bottle 33c

Mizpah Pears 2 large cans 55c Clorox the bottle 16c Drano 12 oz. 22c Old Dutch Cleanser 2 for 15c Red Seal Lye 13 oz. 10c

Ivory Soap 9 large bars 97c It Floats!—into your home at a special price!

Sal Soda 2 1/2 lb. 9c Ammonia bottle 9c, 14c and 25c Shoe Polish—Shinola 2 for 15c Gloss Starch—Argo 3 pkgs. 25c Wright's Silver Cream 20c

Skat Cleanser the pkg. 5c Sani Flush 24 oz. 21c S. O. S. large pkg. 22c O' Cedar Polish 20c and 40c Bon Ami powder 12c, cake 10c Searchlight Matches pkg. 5c Electric L. Globes 25c and 40c Clothes Lines 35c, 40c and 45c Shinola Home Sets 30c

Before You Go Away on Vacation Trip Be Sure Your Valuables Are Safe

Safer Than the Pyramids King Tut has been removed from his tomb of 3000 years, but a Safety Deposit Box in our steel reinforced Vault protects always. At the cost of a few cents a day every care regarding your valuables is definitely removed.

First National Bank OF TORRANCE TOTAL RESOURCES OVER ONE MILLION DOLLARS